

WITHOUT RESPECT

But With Respect It Was a Different Matter

There is a house still standing in South Carolina, one of those old fashioned but stately mansions, that is more than 150 years old. It stands high above its corollars, its massive columns, its fluted pillars extending from the porch to the roof, a mask of aristocratic persons who sit there when the place was new, but who dwelt there no longer.

When the revolution came on Charles Ringgold, then lord of the manor, remained loyal to the king, but his children, all of whom were grown, chose the patriot side. His two sons were "Whigs," his daughter, the "Swamp Fox." The only daughter, Margaret, remained at home with her father, though her heart was with her brothers in the continental service.

One evening during that troublous period Margaret, looking out of a window, saw a tall, slender figure riding toward the house. Going out on the porch, she stood there between two of the great white pillars waiting for him. When he drew rein before her and doffed his hat politely she saw that it was what a woman would naturally think a woman should be—dier and handsome. He came of the same aristocratic English stock from which she herself had sprung.

"My I ask," he said, "are you loyal subjects of the king here, or are you rebels?"

"My father is for the king," was the reply.

"It doesn't matter where my sympathy lies, for I am a woman, but were I a man, I would now be fighting for the patriot cause."

"May I ask?"

The officer dismounted. The girl called a negro servant to hold his horse, then showed the man into the library, where her father was reading, and left him there alone.

Captain Arbuckle, one of Colonel Tector's officers, had been sent out by his chief to make inquiries among such Tories as he could find in the neighborhood as to where the "Swamp Fox" was lurking. He asked the negro for information, but the latter frankly told him that though he was loyal to Britain he had two sons in Marion's corps and begged to be excused.

But since darkness was coming on he offered the captain entertainment for the night.

Arbuckle accepted the invitation, not for the comfort of the house, but that he might pass an evening in company with Margaret, whose stately figure, comely face and aristocratic bearing had made a profound impression upon him. Women to young English blood or that day were considered legitimate prey for the dragon. Captain Arbuckle, however, had no desire to remain with the girl for the night he would take at least one kiss.

He kept his resolution, though he no more than kept it, for he got but one kiss. He left a crimson spot where his lips had been, and a red mark and fire in her eye. Rising, she swept out of the room, leaving him disconcerted. He had not expected such a rebuff from a woman, dwelling in this wild country, far from old England. He was in doubt whether to return home or to make a excuse to remain with a view to a further effort. But for the present there was nothing to do but go to bed.

In the morning he breakfasted with Mr. Ringgold, and when the meal was over he bade his host to return to his duty, he ordered his horses. The negro who brought him a note from Margaret, in which she told him that a champion demanded satisfaction for the insult he had offered her the evening before. Captain Arbuckle was greatly annoyed. He asked the negro many times whether he could not make a excuse to remain with a view to a further effort. But for the present there was nothing to do but go to bed.

"Tell your mistress," he said to the negro, "that I will communicate with her as soon as my duties as a soldier permit."

On his return to camp Arbuckle found that the command had got wind of the "Swamp Fox" and had gone in chase of him. Tarleton had left an order for the captain to remain in the camp in command of a small guard till their next expedition against the South. The master he had in hand. He wrote Margaret that since he had learned that she had a champion the night must come off before any apology could be made. He was impatient to throw himself at her feet to implore her pardon, therefore he despatched the affair and waited with some apprehension. Besides, he was now free from any duty that would interfere with its continuance. Would she ask his permission to name some of his friends, weapons and other details?

A reply came that she felt a delicacy in the identity of the man who was to defend her being known; therefore she intimated that he should fight masked. She would not be present, but, seated in a clearing back of her father's house, the weapons to be cavalry swords. There were to be no seconds. Her slave, Jim, who bore her messages, would be present as a witness.

Arbuckle declined to accept unless assured that the champion was not a blood relative, and when thus assured he agreed to be on hand at the appointed hour.

He found his enemy waiting for him. The man was tall and slender, being dressed in citizen's costume of the day, with a sword belt, breeches, blue stockings, blue waistcoat, blue stockings, blue stockings, large shoe buckles and a powdered periwig. His mask was of black velvet, with lace at and below his mouth.

The colored slave stood near with a salver under the arm containing a small box containing articles to stop the flow of blood in the other. He handed Arbuckle a sabre, and the latter advanced to the spot where his enemy was standing. But before putting his hand in a posture for defense he said to Jim:

"In case I am denied an opportunity to crave your mistress' pardon by being killed in this fight I desire you to assure her that had I lived I would have done so."

"I'll tell 'em, sir," said Jim. "I reckon we got to get killed. Any man wid de odds aver mighty fine fencer. He killed——"

A suppressed exclamation of dissatisfaction from the champion stopped this attempt to frighten the captain, the principal in the affair, advanced to the spot, where his enemy was standing. Notwithstanding Jim's encouragement he was unable to match his opponent, Arubuckle, perceiving this, stood strictly on the defensive, not desiring that his sword should be spilled in such a cause.

He was beginning to be amused at the bungling thrusts and parries made by his opponent when an accident happened at an unlucky moment. Just as his sword was about to pierce the champion's throat, his foot caught in a crevace, and he fell forward on the point of his adversary's sword, which, entering his right side just below the arm pit, inflicted a flesh wound.

At a call from the commandant, Captain Arbuckle, one of Colonel Tector's officers, had been sent out by his chief to make inquiries among such Tories as he could find in the neighborhood as to where the "Swamp Fox" was lurking. ## REGION OF WARMTH.

Hot Springs Are Reported to the North of Parcopia.

Superintendent A. E. Snyder, commanding the Royal Northern Mounted Police at Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, reported to the commissioner in 1899 that from north of the now famous Parcopia district in northern Ontario, he had heard rumors of the existence of a wonderful "tropical" region which was still inhabited by Indians. The Sunday magazine, "The Indian," concluded Superintendent Snyder, "reported having seen the gigantic tracks of these animals."

"But little attention was paid to the story until, in the autumn of last year Mr. C. J. McIntyre and two companions reported a most amazing discovery north of Parcopia. They found the thermometer at forty below, when to their astonishment the temperature began to rise so fast that after a few hours they had thrown off their garments and the snow was soft underfoot."

"It seemed," said Mr. McIntyre, "as though we were suddenly passing into springtime."

Soon after they came upon the first of numerous hot springs, the snow disappeared entirely, and dense vapor rose from the water, the steam and bubbles of the water being so intense that the explorers were not able to follow the path they had taken. The water was alive with bear, caribou, duck, ptarmigan, wild geese, and other game, and gold was found in a number of creeks.

The first house in Manitoba.

The distinguished geographer, Sir Clements Markham, K.C.B., F.R.S., has entered upon his eighty-second year. He comes of a family famous for its scientific and geographical interesting record. Sir Markham's history, edited by Sir Clements, was compiled by his father, the late Rev. David Markham, a western Canadian of Scotch descent. The house he gave him galloons sons to both army and navy. Major William Markham, born 1868, who served in Spain under Peter the Great, and in 1880, when he had built the first house in Halifax, Nova Scotia. He is buried in the West Cloister of Westminster Abbey. He also died recently his elderly son, who became a member of the Order of the Garter.

Sir Clements has been both secretary and president of the Royal Geographical Society, and recipient of one of its gold medals.

The kitchen mint.

When hanging meat it is well not to put the metal hook through the muscle tissue, but through a loop of string.

To preserve lemons for a length of time, bury them in a box of sandust. The rind will keep fresh for several months.

To remove a green spot from wallpaper hold a piece of blotting paper over the spot with a hot hair-dryer for a few moments.

In order to beat the white of an egg to a stiff froth quickly, add a pinch of powdered sugar and flour, and beat on a dinner plate with a broad-pointed knife.

Food and air exercise for cleaning an article. Wrap a cloth out of warm water, dip it in the ashes and with this scour the things; then rub off with a polish.

Food and unpleasant odors from the hands dash a spoonful of sugar on the hot stove and have the hands over the flame. Ground coffee answers the same purpose.

Duke's Escort.

The Canadian Military Gazette, Ottawa, says:

The escort will be the same as for other guards, namely, six men in all ranks under the command of a captain. It was thought that the duke was a member of the royal family, he would be entitled to an escort of twelve men, but the Canadian department that the position of Governor-General superseded his position as member of the royal family.

He himself would have made an escort of four men, but the Duke of Connaught was preparing to come the war in Egypt broke out, and he spent years in campaigning in that country, which would not have been large enough to support the major's escort instead of the major's. It is a fortunate thing for the dragon. The escorts are led into the room, and the men are led into the procession.

The "Swamp Fox" kept Tarleton and his men busy for some time, during which Arbuckle did not appear at the Ringold manor. Then he was taken ill. From a hospital he sent word to Tarleton that he had recovered, but he had recovered so slowly that he had to remain in bed for a week.

He was a great contrast between this and the first meeting Margaret had with Captain Arbuckle, which gave a spirit of rivalry to the former, but which did not give the latter any sense of inferiority.

She made a reply except with her eyes, but the man was satisfied. He watched her, attended by Jim, till she reached the house when she turned and, putting her fingers to her lips, told him what she had fought him for. The "Swamp Fox" had a son, Tarleton, and he was a good soldier as he ever was.

Arbuckle had left his master and come and had found his hand.

Editorial Notes

Now that Blairmore has been made into a town, let all of its citizens work harmoniously together for the further upbuilding of this baby town.

The report that the miners will shortly return to work lends new life to things around this coal town and nearly everyone is wearing a glad smile. With the settlement of the strike the way that things will run in this place will not be slow.

It is hoped that when another Dominion election takes place and this great moulder of public opinion gets its political enthusiasm worked up again that an asbestos factory, operating in this neighborhood, will sell its product at such a low price as to enable this establishment to use that fire proof material for all political purposes.

Lethbridge is nearly always causing a sensation of some sort or another. The latest excited feeling to emanate from that burg is in regard to the alleged settlement of the coal miners' strike. A report bares of truth is almost impossible.
The strike is not yet settled, and why not? Hon. Robert Rogers was the hero of a settlement.

Now that D. N. Drain intends opening up some fire clay property in this vicinity, we would like to suggest to anyone desirous of becoming rich to commence immediately the manufacture of fire proof coffins for the convenience of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island where the inhabitants are disappearing at an alarming rate.

Application has been made to the Governor in council for the sanction of a lease of the railway of the Alberta Railway and Irrigation Co. to the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. for a term of 99 years. Perhaps by the end of 1910 some of us will be shaking hands with St.
Peter—or with some other person—or else using an aeroplane as a means of transportation.

The Sifton government is the only one that got taxes out of the C.P.R. and it has obtained over $60,000 a year out of this company.

New Westminster People Make a Good Move

An important step towards the improvement of existing roads in western Canada will be taken on November 3 and 4, when meetings of all interested in this movement will be held in New Westminster, B.C. The meetings are called by Mayor John A. Lee, and will be attended by a large number of the members of the Westminster Automobile Club, the Vancouver Auto Club, the Victoria Auto Club, the Seattle Automobile Club and other automobile associations.

The Pacific Highway Association will be represented at the meetings by a strong delegation, including prominent San Francisco, Portland, Tacoma, Seattle, Bellingham and Spokane men. These men will come prepared to urge the extension of the Pacific Highway, which now stretches from Vancouver, B.C. to Tia Juana, Mexico, a distance of 2,009 miles. The scheme favored by the highway enthusiasts is the building of the Pacific Highway through British Columbia, via Hazleton, and on to the Yukon.

The extension of the Canadian highway with the object of eventually making it a good road from the Atlantic to the Pacific will also command much of the attention of the meetings. Resolutions asking the federal government to assist in this scheme will be introduced during the convention.

Other matters to be discussed include the placing of signs and guide posts along all travelled roads, the standardizing of legislation regarding the speed of automobiles and the "rule of the road," and the planning of a campaign in favor of better roads.

Strike Practically Settled

Before Rogers Arrived

(Lethbridge Daily Herald.)
Hon. Robert Rogers will, no doubt, expect the credit for the settlement of the coal strike. Formally, for the Minister of the Interior, he entered into the negotiations at a time when the parties were prepared to come to terms.

The open hostility had disappeared and there was a desire on the part of operators and miners to cease the warfare, and resume operations. We were told by one of the miner's officials that the terms reached in the negotiations with Mr. Rogers were exactly the same terms as those agreed upon between the two parties after the visit here of President White, of the United Mine Workers of America, so, as we said before, Mr. Rogers struck the city at the physiological moment, in order to get credit from all his political friends for the settlement of this prolonged industrial dispute. To those who have been following the strike situation during the past few weeks, it was apparent a settlement was in sight, it would have come just as quickly, whether Mr. Rogers had offered his assistance or not. Mr. Rogers has settled strikes before, at least he has been given the credit, but his entrance into the field as a peacemaker is always at the moment when elections are at hand.

Politics is his first consideration, and there is no question but that the Conservatives will have Rogers as the hero of the hour, and endeavor to secure votes for the local candidate in the by election on account of the settlement.

ST. VITUS DANCE

CURE THROUGH THE USE OF DR.
WILLIAMS' KIDNEY PILLS

Child, or it is a disease that usually attacks the young children, though older persons may be affected with it. The most common symptoms are a twinge in the muscles of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses this twinge takes the form of spasms in which the victim is compelled to confine his head, or all the limbs may be affected. The patient is frequently seen to hold anything in the hands or to walk about in a daze, even when the speech is affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves and is always cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which strengthen the blood-tones and strengthens the nerves and thus restores the sufferer to good health.

The following is a striking instance of the cure effected by Dr. Williams' Pills in this trouble. Mrs. Chas. Phillips, Pelos Island, Ont., says:—"At the age of fourteen my oldest daughter, Edith, began to have fits, and the trouble developed into St. Vitus' dance.

Her left arm became affected, then the left leg, and entire left side.
She grew worse and eventually could not hold anything in her hand, and could only go about with a silding, jerking motion. No doctor seemed able to give the medicine which she required, so she became much affected.
We became so much alarmed and that the doctor recommended a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pill, and we began giving her these. In the course of a few weeks there was much better, and finally all the pangs were gone, she was again enjoying perfect health. This was in 1896, and as she has not had a symptom of the trouble since, I feel satisfied in saying the cure is permanent."

So sure you get the genuine pills which are sold by all leading druggists, or can be had at a cost of $2.50 a box or six boxes for $25.00 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Affectionate Sait:

A young preacher was fishing for trout accompanied by a couple of young girls from his parish. A farmer who was also out fishing called to the boat, charged him, "What's your name?"

"I am a fisher of men," said the young preacher with dignity.

"Well, I think you're right," and then looking at the girls, said, "I see you've got the right kind of bait with you."

C.P.R. Double Track to Brandon

In its constant efforts to give its patrons the very best of transportation the Canadian Pacific Railway is making a special effort to complete the laying of its double track between Winnipeg and Brandon by the end of December. The C.P.R. Company officials stated recently that there was no doubt but that the new tracks would be constructed and in operation by the end of December, as the 125 miles between Winnipeg and Brandon, just as the contractors on the job are pushing forward the work, and are making good progress. Between Brandon and Brandon, which is 77½ miles, all the grading is completed, and up to date 75 per cent of the track has been laid.

When the work is completed the Canadian Pacific will have a double track between Fort William and Port Arthur, and the C.P.R. Company's traffic continues to increase at its present rate a couple of years will see the double track stretching from the head of Lake Superior to Calgary, St. Thomas Shaughnessy, president of the C.P.R., said to the press recently, "It is the intention of the company to extend the double track to the head of Lake Superior, between Moose Jaw and Caron and Moose Jaw and Prairies. Grading on these lines has been started, and while the work is not yet finished, but no rails have been laid as yet.

New Grain Exchange

The new Grain Exchange lately opened at Fort William will give farmers and dealers another exchange through which to do their business.

Fort William and Port Arthur being at the head of the Great Lakes, and being the storerooms of the grain growers of Lake Superior, it is only natural that the exporters think of Fort William as the logical point for a market for western grain.

A sample market is to be established at the head of the lake, which should be a great boon for the farmers and dealers.

The mixed crop that we have this year can be disposed of in more advantageous manner, advanced by selling on sample than on grade, and the Fort William and Port Arthur Grain Exchange is to be gratified in making this a reality.

The only thing now required is to induce the Government to change the Customs laws so that a market may be established at the head of the lake.

The Government should see that a glance at the market price of grain in the United States and the grades of wheat, oats, barley and flax.

Bisket of Beef

Bisket of beef is a part which is sold at a low price, the reason being that the bone is high, and there is a large amount of fat. Yet, with proper cooking, bisket can be made as deliand the trouble entailed by cooking it properly is well repaid by the reduction in the butcher's bill.
